AREA ON ALERT FOR ESCAPED CAN-VICT

Colorado residents are being told by authorities to keep a sharp lookout for cans of The Old Mine's Vanilla Bourbon in area liquor stores and on draft in local bars. The dangerously delicious signature hard cider was serving hard time on draft at The Old Mine when it made its escape.

Hiding in plain sight on preferred alcoholic beverage shop shelves and on tap in alehouses, adults should approach the drink responsibly, and consume enjoyably.

If Vanilla Bourbon is not found at your local liquor store or bar, please ask about it and encourage safe haven for the delicious, tasty beverage.

When asked how he felt about Vanilla Bourbon making its way beyond the walls of The Old Mine, Red the wistful bartender said, "I have to remind myself that some ciders aren't meant to be caged. Their flavors are just too bright. And when they fly away, the part of you that knows it was a sin to lock them up does rejoice."

DATE NIGHT TURNS OUT STRANGELY GREAT

After years of date nights gone awry, Pete and Katie Sumner were happy to report that their latest date night actually turned out wonderful. "Seems like every time we get a sitter and go out on a date night, something goes horribly wrong. We end up at a lame dinner with screaming kids at a nearby table, a bad movie, or the bowling alley is closed because of a rental shoe shortage," Pete said.

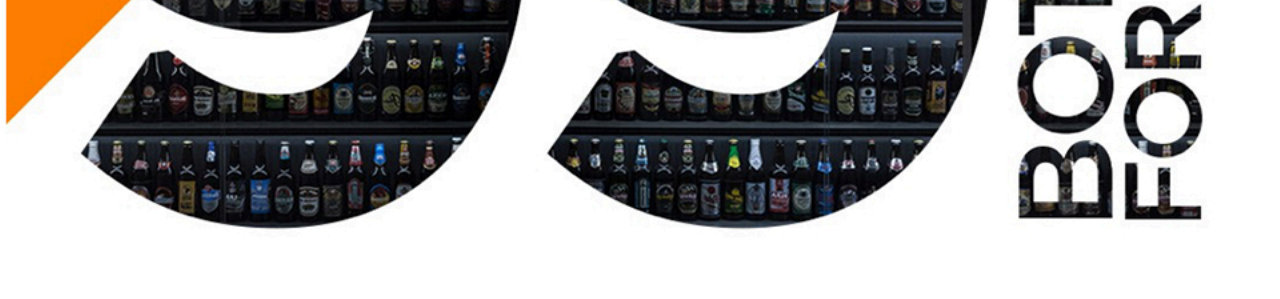

"Date night at The Old Mine's Handlebar Factory was great!" his wife Katie added. "No kids, a foosball table, a record player, and tons of small batch ciders, beers, and even old fashioned and margaritas on tap plus artisan Old Mine pizza. What more could we want?"

Pete smiled wide and said, "No kids, too. Did we mention no kids at the Handlebar Factory Thursday, Friday, and Saturday from 3:00-9:00pm? Yeah, no kids."

Katie added, "No kids. Like, none."

"Yeah," Pete said. "Great drinks. Fun, and... no kids."

As of press time, Pete and Katie, who love their children, were looking forward to another future date night.
